Establishing two English Translation Workshops at Once: A Utilization of TeamViewer Software

Abstract

The purpose of this research was teaching those students who had a time limitation to attend the workshop through online courses. Online learning through different soft wares like Adobe Connect and Team Viewer are ways of studying for an internationally recognized qualification without needing to attend classes on campus. At this study, the translation workshop was held in a class for students enrolling it. At the same time, the materials were taught to the students who were absent through TeamViewer Software on the teacher's computer and the students'. After that, the absent students answered to the exercises and the teacher controlled their screens and learning process. Then, the absent students' views about the inclusion of this kind of course on their curriculum were investigated. The result of this study may helpful for teachers to create more teaching opportunities and for students to save time by using the TeamViewer software.
